Do you really think this is taking much effort from me? Most of this is straight from you. No trolling needed, just a little explaining, and some links.

So I know you as a man who secretly enjoyed dressing up as a woman, but was ashamed of it. This person was apparently a massive asshole to those around him. He was then chased out of his own community after what appeared to be proof being posted of what he was so ashamed of. Among other scandalous things taking place.

Only to return as a guy later, who upon returning has seemingly accepted the female side of himself. Taking the name "Jessica", and "Valentine", and trying to convince everyone to forget the old "him". Going as far as dressing up and posting pictures, and demanding to be referred to as a woman.

During this time you made new friends, some of whom used to hate you. I am sure Stargirl, and Venompawz remember this. During this, those people actually believed you had changed. I guess you really are an asshole for using them like that. Along with any other new users during that time.

Continuing on, you then disappear again for a short time, and return as a proud father, who owns a house, has a family, and a job.

You now deny that anything during the previous time online was serious. You now act like you once did while leading APB, but again deny anything to do with pretending to be a female. Back to being a massive asshole, but at the same time referring to events during the previous time when arguing.

Oh and lets not forget the actual picture, and your claim of its authenticity:

And this one where you state: "Jess is the female version of me":

This is your deviant art page too, since it is linked on your own site in your own signature:

So when exactly were you trolling throughout all of this? Who were you trolling? It's not trolling if you legitimately did it, then later changed your mind.

If it was all trolling, I guess you are okay with this being here, along with all of these links to your own pages as a recap of your epic 6 something year long troll. And your commitment to being a lying asshole to those around you. Not something to be very proud of, but okay!

If it was all trolling, what makes you any different from the guy in the other thread who decided to pretend to be two girls? I'll tell you: you can hardly pull off one.

Sorry again about using my critical thinking, and backing you even further into a corner.

Jess is the female version of me, at least in sculpture form. That also means the scrap photo earlier is me as well. I know the breasts are exaggerated, but I felt they were proportionally correct (as did the instructor) in relation to her body. Painted version is done, photos will come soon
