They wouldn't be identical to the ones WS sold in the late 1990s. They'd be better quality, since manufacturing has undoubtedly improved since then. Additionally, I'm thinking of getting them built out of solid metal instead of being enameled on, so they'll have a raised surface for the logos and the background will be recessed, making it catch light and look more impressive.

I dare say you could wear them with a suit. But we'll see - I'm sure I could replicate the original look of those pins that WS sold if people wanted that instead.
