Quote:"Who cares what people think, it is what you know."

As mentioned earlier: if you didn't care about what people thought, you wouldn't justify your actions to others. Let's break that down and replace "justify" with one of the definitions that word has.

As mentioned earlier: if you didn't care about what people thought, you wouldn't attempt to prove or show your actions be just, right, or reasonable. Their words would be meaningless to you. You obviously do care what other people think, which is why you're here justifying your actions and trying to portray yourself as a Nice Guy.

Quote:"Feel the Love."

Your posts don't show a lot of love. Perhaps you should define what "love" means now, maybe you'll get a 50% success ratio defining one word's usage correctly out of two.
