You should try airsoft some time. You can choose between many exact replicas (As in, weight, looks, size, etc.) of real world guns (like the m4a1, mp5, ak-47, etc.) and real military outfits (BDU's, vests, etc.). Most of the guns are only around $150-$200, most of them are full auto (can be switched between full and semi-auto if applicable) electric guns, and last for several thousand BBs (ALOT more than what you'll use in an entire day.) before you need to recharge, that fire around 300fps and above. They shoot 6mm plastic BBs, and can be loaded with paint balls if you want to.

You basicly play the same as if you were paintballing, except it's more realistic and fun.

(One of the things that I dislike about paintballing is how crappy the guns look, you have this large and quite ugly container on top (called a 'hopper' for some freaky reason), and a large gas cylinder below the gun, and a cheap look. Comparing paintball guns to airsoft bb guns is like comparing a Model T ford, to a modern day hybrid car.)
