Hitman wrote on Sun, 23 September 2012 14:35if my team isn't really going to teamplay (NEVER will happen in pub) or play at their best level(tunnel snipe, 24/7 sbh/...), im very likely not to go all out in trying to beat the enemy, because the match on itself is just stupid and pretty much pointless, imo its not even close to an actual all out competitive game of renegade as to how it should be played, which is pretty much the sum up of what clanwars is all about (talking any number of players in the clanwar here, not just 2v2's or 3v3's) so because not everyone is trying their hardest you're not going to try at all? sounds like a winning attitude!

the way i see it, the best players will do whatever they can to win, whether it looks likely or not, and whether their teammates are good or bad over a long-term period, the best players would win more games that's why MUDKIPS wants a win tracker so badly for Jelly Marathon

Hitman wrote on Sun, 23 September 2012 14:35i'd say we can organise a game to get this settled but im quite afraid there are very few clanwar players left that would prove what exactly?
it makes about as much sense as you challenging me to a 1v1 to prove me wrong in some way
