It all depends on how your custom bot was made. If it's not a .dll in the Renegade server folder, then it will probably still work. If it is a SSGM plugin, it will also likely still work. If it is a custom version of scripts.dll, it will not work (which is exactly the reason why that's not how customizations are supposed to be made).

To upgrade TT, (1) backup your server folder and (2) extract the new TT server archive over the existing files. (3) You will have to copy the tt.cfg, server.ini, ssgm.ini, and perhaps other configuration files I forgot about back from your backup (or don't overwrite them in step 2 in the first place). Be sure to read the release notes from the intermediate version(s) to see if you should do anything else, but usually the above should be enough.

You should always make a backup; that way, the worst case is your server's current state. Just copy your server directory before you start and put it back if anything goes wrong.
