Far be it for me to question Jelly policy, but with the release of 4.0 RC1 the "extremely advantage" skins that have been classified as cheats are now automatically blacklisted anyways. There was always too much freedom in terms of what "skinners" "could" do. Skins that are "bright pink" for sbhs for instance was always considered "advantage skins". In a way, they are classed as cheats too and I can only assume that these "skinners" aren't banned at Jelly?

If you recall correctly, di3hardNL created "glowing c4" which is what g1d based his creations off. I assume he's not banned as well?

I'm not defending what he created, as they have no place in renegade at all, but I just think that banning someone permanently for merely creating extremely advantage models/skins is a little too extreme. He's been a full moderator at RC for a while - do you really think they'd keep him around if he wasn't of good character? 4.0 has given a lot of players, including myself a second chance.

I know that what he says on here can make him look like a prat, but that attitude is only confined to here as he's a different person completely in RC, as they wouldn't accept the same level of bullshit.

Just my thoughts.
