Lol, I am glad you are so up to date on my community. I have known every members of the administration for many years and just because they are talked down on these forums does not make their character deform in any way. I trust everyone in Rencorner and no decisions are made without community approval. I'd appreciate it if you could back up your comments before you post them. I am not new to this game, I am well aware of how things operate. When you run a community you can send me a pm and then let me know how to do things.
