i will say this one last thing. i wish i wasnt like this. i did like the game. bu i did it out of personal frustration. i usually destroy my addictions so i dont spend too much time on them. it would have been easy for me to dedicate most of my times for a few months to reborn not thinknig about anything else until i eventually flip out. nothing personal to anyone. i just flip out beforehand to destroy obsessions i detect early on. i do have some regret and remorse for those annoyed by my antics during this process. i would be very disappointed to see reborn not succeed. i already still have thoughts of the game after uninstalling it. it is quite an original experience and i already have fond memories of it and some really cool base bombardment defense and offense. you know tha one match renardin where you said you loved your game bombing the nod base with the orca bomber while iwas shooting it down and we were being flooded by gdi units. the game has a lot of depth just like ts. ery good job and like i said original. its not perfect but its good. ciao and i am "sorry"
