It's nothing wrong to become better during playing a game, that's a possibility I give Iran, unfortunately. He has become an accurate Sniper over a very short amount of time, which non-naive would realize as modifying the game to his own advantage. It's easy as that, if he wouldn't have been posting so much about how he finds loopholes and abusing glitches in the code plus acting like a complete asshole in here and in other locations, people would actually see him in a different spotlight. As an average Player who gained his experience during the time he played, unfortunately, he likes to play that outrider/asshole role. And as long as this impression is the main thing that pops up in people's head when they hear his name, he won't be handled differently.
