The health care system here... is no way better than private healthcare it's a crappy slow corrupt system here. before i go lemme say i'm not getting into blaming the system for people getting sick i'm just pointing out the corruption.

these are from experiences told to me by many different people over the years and my own experience here in Canada:

1. Its VERY slow, long waits for APTS. and ER even when there's no one in the ER it takes unusually long
2. The people working at hospitals etc. in our healthcare system are constantly busy with paperwork as if the paperwork is more important than helping sick people. it's almost as if the government purposely creates all this mandatory unnecessary paperwork etc. to slow down the health care system and it's ability to do it's important job(helping sick people...)
3. obviously no competition means no striving for better.. (just came to mind now obviously to anyone who knows the difference between a free society etc.blaw)

But yes our healthcare system in Canada is not striving it's stuck in the 1950's because of no competition... And probably many other reasons i just thought i'd weigh in to agree that the health care system here does suck as of... 1970's/80s?

You wouldn't know it at a young age here though... I was always told while growing up "Canadas so lucky free healthcare system etc.etc."

Annoying lies I say..
