What work?

Your life story: Goes to 100%-parent-funded local UW school, fails out off of academic probation. Then enlists in an EMT course but fails out of that or just stops going. Eventually goes back to school and attends a different UW campus. Suddenly claims he's in medical school and works with disabled children through his program. Suddenly claims he has a job supporting himself working with disabled children, insinuating he's already somehow finished medical school when he probably hasn't finished his 100%-parent-funded college AKA Obamasocialism.
