The answer to every bug report is the same though: TT scripts.dll for Renegade is past EOL; there will not be a new release with bug fixes, so this bug will not be fixed. If TT had shareholders, they would most likely have demanded us to stop supporting Renegade a long time ago. Usually share holders don't demand the team to abandon the only project that still has people using it however

Err... They would if that project didn't bring in any money anymore. Guess what? TT never brought in any money, which wasn't a problem because the members were internally motivated to fix Ren. Now there aren't any motivated members left (for Ren).

Edit: Although I do agree with you that it'd be awesome if someone would fix these bugs and support it, of course.

The thing is, there are people who are motivated enough to continue supporting stock renegade.
