And I'm sure there are plenty of people that'd like to step in and attempt to fix the bugs that have been left, hell I would but I already know the sharing policy with the source code is 0 and its not quite worth rebuilding 4.x from scratch just to fix the issues that exist.

And try to understand, I think you guys did great work, but with any large project accidents happen, and I get a little annoyed when there is no way made available for people to fix these issues, especially when parts of the team that built 4.0 clearly cares as they continue to check the forums.
