

---

Subject: Re: more guns in america = less crime
Posted by Hitman on Tue, 19 Aug 2014 14:56:55 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Aircraftkiller wrote on Mon, 18 August 2014 17:09I love when idiots blather on about fiat money since they're always completely unaware that currency only has value because we put value in it

Gold is not inherently valuable, food is. You need food to eat. Gold isn't inherently valuable. Water is. You need water to drink. You're not going to eat gold or drink gold if some wizard makes the US collapse without affecting any other country's economic system

Please stop posting stupid shit, and Ethenal please, for your own sake, stop visiting Alex Jones Gold is more rare than rare earth metals, it would actually force fiscal responsibility on the people that have the controls.

It has been money for 6000 years and there were very good reasons as to why the market chose gold.

- 1.) Store of Value
- 2.) Generally Accepted
- 3.) Durable
- 4.) Divisible
- 5.) Portable

Sure, the dollar has most of these aspects covered, but definitely not number 1 on the list.

<http://www.truthcontrol.com/files/truthcontrol/styles/large/public/images/851.gif>

Not really attractive to put my savings into.

---