I am honestly having mixed feelings with the leaving of clan FUD. I highly respected the FUD members and their alternate ways of gameplay, no matter how crude and "n00bish" they were. But also, Crimson, Blazer, and the other Renegade "leaders" (using the term as they have been called in the forums for their amount of work) have created unique and incredible applications that enable the world of Renegade to expand.

I am not siding with either n00bstories or FUD; I choose to remain neutral in this conflict. I see that both points of views are valid and accurate, and even though it might be denied, contains a lot of bias. Hell, EVERY post we make contains bias. I post this to attempt to put an end to this senseless conflict. Even though it is too late, we should leave the FUD be who they are, and not discriminate them for their different ways of thinking. And to the FUD, you must also realize that the "leaders" are trying to improve the game of Renegade, not monopolize it and become overlords of all who play it.

This post is meant to mediate the conflict. Taskbot7 regarded me as a FUD fanboy, and I am not ashamed to admit that I am. Please, drop the subject, because hate will only bring more hate. Only through peace may we be able to settle our differences and accept each other as unique individuals in this world.

Even though this post will never reach the FUD members, I beg the community to let the past stay in the past and turn a new leaf. The only way to leave this behind is to ignore it.

Also, this thread is for people to choose if they are going to let this subject drop. Don't flame me for "siding with FUD n00bys", since this post is entirely the opposite.

Speak your minds.
