Actually Ani, Shai gets the real credit for it's current state with the backing and support of Trojan and a few OSTK and others. When you were there you had a good thing going, but it hit rock bottom m8. So you can't take credit for it's current state.

The strong OSTK connection to the server just like the MPF clan connection to the MPF server keeps peeps together and things going. Then with the addition of Ice and her game with the other ones they successfully launched they have a rocking gaming community, not just a Renegade community. It was Trojans vision and the results are commendable.

The common theme with the successful servers at this point in time is simply staff involvement. The staff at RC continued to play in the server even when it was empty and shai drove a lot of that (at least when I was still there and I can't believe it stopped). The staff has continued to build and the results are what you see today. I'm very happy for them and hope they continue for as long as gaming communities like MPF and OZ clan has.
