

---

Subject: Why Delete the message?

Posted by Blazer on Fri, 26 Sep 2003 22:53:04 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

CrimsonBlazerOkay so there was a disagreement that happened. Lets throw some water on the fire instead of gasoline, and just let this die down okay? You two are NOT going to end your friendship over a temporary one day disagreement! If nothing else just avoid talking about it for a few days, I'm sure that after everyone has had some sleep/sex/food/whatever, things won't seem so bad.

Don't worry, I'm not letting him end it that easily. I felt our friendship was strong enough to disagree with one of his decisions. I apologize for that mistake.

I think the issue is that his "decision" was blown out of proportion, and rash judgements were made, seemingly my fault because of relaying things he told me. That combined with apparently today being "one of those days" for more than a few people...just makes up for a bad situation.

Fortunately, I think this is just "one of those days" and this matter will solve itself with some time.

---