For the people curious about the technical side. In 2019, after the forum host changed things around, a backup had to be restored. However, the forums ran on a very old PHP-version and were no longer compatible with the new host. I contacted crimson a while ago to give me an opportunity to try and update the forums to a newer version so she could reactivate it. It wasn't easy at all, as we had to upgrade over several different versions, but here we are back, in time before the Renegade birthday :wink:. I thank Crimson for her trust.

There's an amazing load of history in here, as well as a ton of assets in the "mod release forum". All files attached to the posts still work.
