I'm way older than most people here, and I like DBZ. Why? Its hard to truly explain, but to make it simplistic I will just say because it is violent. The versions of it you seen on the cartoon network are highly censored, the uncut versions have blood and foul language. Like I said its hard to say why I like it, I just do...as a kid (and maybe always?) people fantasize about having super powers, and its hard to get more powerful than the dbz chars...plus if you watch it from the very first episode, it actually has a plot and story...unlike most other shows that just have a story contained within a single episode. Dbz is a series, and also has some full length movies. So I find it more in-depth than most other shows which are designed for kids with short attention spans.
