I must agree with Imortal.

Its foolish to say there are no cheats. Although your definition of cheats my vary, you all know there are the click bots/color aim bots, whatever.

The fact is CS has FAR more users than Renegade, and thus, a greater percentage of skilled programmers and others. And as the homo punk buster hard drive scanning program (work of the Nazis) makes the programmers of these programs unhappy, they will look into other games. As happened, who knows. If it does, its going to stay secret and very hard to get for a long time. Until about the time they become tired of the game and make it publicly available, and thus every lamer n00b will pick it up, just to show how good he is by using a program to get kills to satisfy their ego. And we all know every one of WW's games has becomes plagued with cheats. I fail to see what makes one game so different than any other. No game is perfect, and is susceptible to cheats and

Enjoy the game now, you never know when something could change it all.
