Bullshit this doesn't make us money. Yeah, I spend a couple hundred a month on n00bstories.com servers with nothing back, but the knowledge gained from working on the site with technical skills and people skills got me a damn good job at Cisco. So it IS in fact making money.

Now ACK does all this mapping not only for fun, but also because he aspires to be employed in the gaming industry one day. Then yes, this will in fact make him money. The fact that he strives to be better than everyone else and succeeds is what will let him beat out another applicant for some job down the road.

Don't sit here and tell us how to live our lives. If we don't think our lives are fulfilling enough, that's our call, not yours. Myself, I spend hours upon hours a week in IRC and the forums and playing Renegade, but that doesn't mean I am not being fulfilled in life. I'm very happy with my life.

If your only argument is "You need to get a life" then you, in fact, have no argument. You're just using ad hominem to say "it doesn't matter what your opinion is because you're just a loser with no life". That's irrelevant to the topic at hand and therefore a waste of time for you to type and us to read.
