To sell the Mod, yes. After all, they are using Renegades Game engine-for profit- without EA's consent.

However...

They can charge any expenses that will not cause EA any financial harm, or violates copyrights.

Able to charge for:

- Shipping and handling
- Cost of the CD and case

Cannot charge for:

- Any costs relating to the production of the modification or the modification itself, regardless of personal cost, including but not limited to labour.
 - Anything made by EA, or with tools supplied by EA. Ie. electronic or physical reproductions where the original idea is owned by EA. (and no, looking nothing like the Red Alert model won't work)
 - Anything not covered in the previous section.
