That's not Christianity at all. There is no single human who says "I am the messenger of the will of God, therefore obey me." is telling the truth.

TRUE Christianity would never allow a mere human being to be the messenger of the will of God because every human is fallable. Jesus was human, however, he was without sin (including the original sin) and therefore he and ONLY he is able to say "This is the will of God".

While that doesn't prove that God exists, it does prove that God is not a delusion. While stories such as the great flood actually DID happen, it's VERY liekly that God didn't tell Noah to build an arc before he smites the people in (where was it...) Turkey?
