On most maps you can wedge the corner of your APC into the doorway, tripping the larger part of the mines without you or your team taking damage. It may ruin your getaway car, but if you went there to kill a structure, that's not much of a loss.

Agreed. Everybody knows how to NOT get killed by mines by now...it always seems, however, that the people playing on your side don't always manage to take their heads out of their asses fast enough to kill the intruders. I never even use mines...if I buy a tech/hottie, it's for the faster repairs, not for the mines. Someone's always messing up the mine locations with a big cluster or leaving the mines as the only defense, so it's just not even worth the effort. Your time as an adv. engineer character is better spent fixing things than laying mines.
