Thats not 100% correct.

It happend to me more then once that I have bought an apc and then two other renegade players jump in and the apc goes fine, no lag at all but then this 4th guy jumps in and the apc starts to warp all over the screen and you cant drive it so you think wtf? and jumps out and all the lag is gone and then you jump in your apc again and its starts to warp all over the screen, but when this 4th guy jumps out, the apc returns to normal. Ive seen this happend on all 2+ seats tanks and I seen it happend to others. When I and the others ask this "lag" guy what connection he have they always say 56k modem.

That's not what it is. It's just a vehicle bug - he gets into it and gets that "messed up first person" view. This causes the entire vehicle to be screwed up until he leaves it and enters again, or stays out of it completely.
