rm5248l meant that when WW made C&C, support was good, WOL didn't go down much, ladder was fine, serials were given out, etc. But EA has done very little of this, have you noticed that the Generals site is really the only one updated? If you go to the Red Alert page, and click on updates, it will send you to the official C&C site, where you find almost NO information on how to make Red Alert work or whatever. The Renegade site is a P.O.S. and has been down for what, 9 months maybe? EA has just dropped the ball on this. I doubt that WW was considering making Generals, and have you seen the C&C attack chopper on pogo.com? That is NOTHING like the normal C&C. Conclusion: EA only cares about Generals, and rarely fixes things.

Have you been reading the posts above? It's unsupported, EA don't want to waste time on something there gonna get nothing out of. Generals has only recently been released, and therefore still supported.
