The green one is pretty cool if you can find a retailer selling it. I picked up the black one as I think that it looks great with the blue LED fan lighting up the components.

I've still got a CoolMod LED from a Volcano 9 system I built that had no window, I am thinking of puttin it on my Volcano 11 as it will look great. The LED's are wired up to the power and hdd connectors, so they flash when your using it.

The front of the Scorpio lights up in the center with blue LED's when it on and there are two bits that flash for hdd activity each side of the middle bit. I will probably need to mod the hdd connector with a transistor so I don't draw too much current from the motherboard and blow it up.
