Exactly. Don't vote Bush. Have you heard his plan for forests? After careful consultation with lobbyists, he decided the best course of action for preventing forest fires is to cut down all of the big old trees. Now, you'd be hard pressed to find any scientist who says cutting down big old trees is a good thing. Big trees actually prevent forest fires by keeping the floor moist. What causes forest fire spread is low-lying brush. But, big companies don't have too much use for tiny plants, now, do they?
