

---

Subject: Wall Papers

Posted by Madtone on Fri, 26 Mar 2004 05:40:21 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

z310

BTW madtone you live in a nice place, too bad the neiborhood where i live is messed up - ive been jumped more than one for being white in my neiborhood

I haven't lived in Australia all my life, i've traveled alot around the world. I've been in some really bad place's. I get alot of my inspiration from all the traveling i do and have done.

I know what its like to be jumped, as i've been to quite a few foreign countrys where they are quite racist and hostile.

Just because its messed up doesn't mean art doesn't exist there. The kind of art that exists in your area is quite different to the art in my area. You just need to open your eyes and actually find it!

The greys, browns, blacks and yellows all can be manipulated into a piece of art, captured by a single shot of a photograph. Just try and get the angle, the lighting and the right things into the viewfinder and there you have it.

---