Just in case this guy's still racking his brain over it () yea, this is a level script break.

What I think happened was, (because this has happened to me before, but I completed the mission) he went through a yellow-coded door at the bottom of the ship when a black hand soldier opened it, and he didn't have the yellow card at the time. So he made his way along that side of the ship, killed the flamethrowers and captain, got the red card, headed back to the other side and killed the first mate to get the yellow card, and because EVA knows that after you kill the first mate you then proceed to kill the captain, well he'd already done that but EVA wanted him to go kill the captain anyway. So that's how things got uber fuxx0red.
