Yeah, we have laws, but companies also have money, and people like money.

And judges = people.

Not that I'm suggesting that Microsoft got off from being disbanded because they were shown to have a monopoly, appealed, and then paid off another judge to let them go. Nothing like that at all.

But I don't think EA has a monopoly. There are a ton of other game companies out there, like Blizzard and Ubi Soft, which continually churn out good content.
