Confession itself is a blasphamy.

To prove this: I remind you that Jesus (IN THE BIBLE) is told to be the ONLY mediator between humanity and God. Since sins are a violation of God's law, it is humanity's job to amend with God. However, because Jesus is the ONLY mediator, not priests, pastors, bishops, or even Popes, you have 2 choices: Confess your sins to God, or confess your sins to Jesus.

Remember that God and Jesus are one in the same, being both part of the Trinity, so it doesn't matter who you talk to.

Now, if you rely on a mere human to mediate between you and God, then you elavate that human to a position equal to that of Jesus. Last time I checked, it's blasphemous to try and equalize any mere human with Jesus.

You can go and tell your priest all your problems and sins if you want to, but don't expect for that priest to magically make it all go away with some pennance, because that just isn't so. Your sins are your own, and God's business, and no one else's. It's just that simple.
