ITs about 7 pages of reading but its worth it i suppose. I think people want to travel though time because they want to cheat on their life but knowing the future does take away hope one of the only reasons why we humans contune living. I wouldnt be suprised if this all turns out to be something that is eventualy proven to be imposible. If we were to ever be able to manipulate time to our bidding it should only be to prevent war or to stop armegedon and nothing else. "knowing too much about one's future will jepridize their well being."

Spring break is boring some times...
