
Subject: It just takes time...

Posted by Alkaline on Thu, 15 Apr 2004 03:26:23 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Try_leel just want to know...

Alkaline, how exactly does RenGuard supposedly remove full control of servers from the people that pay to run them?

Do you not realize, they have access to any FDS command on your server? They monitor who is playin on which server, they probably know your FDS remote login passwords, server configs, and what maps you are running. Why should you be required to give all this information to them? Why can't you just run RG directly between you and your clients. There is no NEED for a central Network, only reason its there because it wants to have info from all servers.

If you feel comfortable giving crimson the power to mointor everything that goes on in your server, feel free. I just don't think I'm going to let that happen.
