

---

Subject: Fact based thread.

Posted by NeoSaber on Thu, 20 Mar 2003 06:22:05 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Ren Sizzlefablt doesn't matter that only 35 out of 191 countries are involved in or support the war? It doesn't matter how many of the remainder are either neutral or against it, less than 20% are in support of the war. Hardly what I'd call overwhelming support.

35 countries are directly supporting the war in one form or another. Many others don't oppose it, they just aren't stepping forward to help.

Can someone put together a list of the countries that really do oppose a war? Then we can compare the differences in how many are for and against.

---