EA is not likely to do much about it because Westwood doesn't exist and Westwood would be the one's who are legally responsible for damages of that nature. If they don't exist Because EA bought them, determined that they don't make money for EA, and then disband them, then in all crappy likely hood, EA won't care, because they can't be held responsible, and the company that could be buried with a tomb stone that says, "Murdered By EA 2002 AD for not making EA enough money."

Sad story, but true unfortunately, so that really makes the CD Bomb thingy all the more crappy.

Be glad you can't open your DVD drive though, because if you could open it and use it, and then did use it, say good buy to $50 or more, you would have to buy a new DVD drive. This way, with the door stuck, you can get it to a shop and get it repaired.
