I was having a similer problem. My firewall was running, but yet something was still blocking RG from getting the master server list. When I got my firewall running again all I had to do is get it to allow RG and it worked again. It was almost like the firewall was still blocking it even though it was completely turned off.

I'm not completely sure what I did right, but what I did was log off of my XP user account and log back in. My Nortan internet security opened on startup and when I tried to open RG it asked me if I wanted to permit or block it from accessing the internet, i clicked permit, and it's worked ever since. If that doesn't work then you're going to have to route through your firewall/router settings and allow RG to get to the internet...
