Its a good skill to have, however it is difficult to do this around the whole perimeter of the map, primarily because in the real world there is normally a way out of most places and it feels kinda odd when you can't find one.

For example you end up with things like a town with no roads in or out of it, or you do have roads, but they loop round and come back into town.