I don't actually dislike Mr. Moore, I don't like him either but that is beside the point. His method of attracting attention to himself for his self aggrandizement is pathetic. He is nothing but a tool for the Left in America and Abroad.

It makes sense when you think about it.

The Left considers America to be the focus of evil in the modern world, no matter what it is, it's America's fault.

The Ozone Hole in Antartica?
The Left: It the dirty American's fault. They drive SUVs and pollute.
In actuality, as science is proving, the hole in the ozone layer is a natural effect and is part of the cyclical nature of the Earth's atmosphere.

Global Warming?
The Left: It the dirty American's fault. They drive SUVs and pollute.
In actuality, as science is proving, the hole in the ozone layer is a natural effect and is part of the cyclical nature of the Earth's biosphere.

The War in Iraq?
The Left: It's America's fault! Hussein is as pure as the wind driven snow.
In truth, as an American, I can say(with a degree of sadness) that Bush may have mislead us when he claimed WMDs in Iraq. But, I look at it like this.

1. We(The USA) are finishing what we should have finished a decade ago in the Gulf War.

2. He(Bush) was made aware of something that precipitated the war and cannot tell the Public without either A) endangering a larger segment of the population or B)would embarrass one of our allies.(the Food for Oil scandal at the UN anyone?)

3. It's part of a longer term operation to eliminate Islamic Theocracies in the middle east and thus remove a large portion of the support for international Terror Groups and eventually create a more permanent peace.

The goverance of a free nation must be secular to fufill it's oblications to it's citizens equally. However, Leaders of said governances must have a strong foundation in ethics and morality that comes from religion to lead well.
