One of our masters was moved to a box with a shitty processor for the month of June because we went over in bandwidth by about $180 on it. It caused most of the network to be slow to respond and such. We have since shuffled the servers around and everything has been running much better since then. It's possible that at the time this guy was cheating, our network wasn't telling your server quickly enough that he wasn't on RenGuard and should be kicked.
