AircraftkillerThe way I see it: At least someone is trying to combat the slow descent into apathy concerning English in our society. Maybe you don't care that "such and such means this or that," but that's not going to prevent people from mushing together all sorts of words that have absolutely no business being correlated.

...texture and skin don't have no business being correlated, though...Where textures appear to cover objects to the human eye, what do skins appear to do according to the human eye? cover objects.
