Of course it doesn't... that's just the cheaters trying to persuade you not to use it. Until someone provides conclusive evidence of a trojan in renguard (like, screen shots or logs of trojan activity), don't believe them.

I say that confidently because with over 5000 unique users who have accessed RenGuard, not wilost0rm is a fucking n00b. He's a known cheater, which is why he states that Renguard has a Trojan.

ONE has provided actual evidence. You know why, because it doesn't EXIST.

First off if someone doesn't like RenGuard, I automatically suspect them a cheat. However, there are a few people I am aware of that have a personal conflict or agenda with people involved with the project. It would seem these people make the most noise, which just so happens to be

This is a time for those that love the "GAME" to pull together, and unite under a common goal. Many have all been whining and pestering for its completion, now, is it the same people putting it down?

RenGuard does what it set out to, and with very little code and overhead. All should be aware of the huge undertaking the project has entailed. Instead of bitchin about it not being what one expected, assist in its continued development with constructive criticism.

You can tell people are n00bs when they type as badly as that. Most of us are a bit less on an IM program as opposed to a forum or similar, but no-one answers with "i no" unless they're young, new to computers or (most likely) a freshly picked, ripe n00b.

Renguard is da bomb

I love it but there are are still so many people that don't have it and a lot of servers will stay empty or at least half full until we promote Renguard a lot more.

I am running RenGuard with two programs, Firewall & Norton Anti-virus.

So far, I just had to allow the firewall to allow RG to connect to the internet, which I know is safe. And if RenGuard did have a trojan, Norton would of found it. Either way, it doesn't, it's safe, so get it...especially by June 1st. If not, Crimson will come by your house and blow up your computer.
