oblivion165what year, they have been making those since WWI

They are the same for every year they have been made. some internal differences but not on the outside.

And it was made in 1936. more than 20 years after ww1.

Put yourself a portfolio together of previous work, open up 3DS Max an just model around a bit, also open up Photoshop and make some stuff.

Bundle it all together and make a very nice organized and simple portfolio that you can link people to for previous work.

Make sure on your portfolio that you list your skills, previous work, how long you have had the skill and what you aim to do with your skills in the future.

You'll be surprised on how much it will help you get recognised.

Well my parents are committing me for depression. I won't be around for long.

I get to go spend a week in a hospital, because I use my computer too much and I didn't want to go see their damn lady killers movie.

They want me to take mind bending drugs to change my personality, to better suit them.

I've been a video game editor since 6th grade, working with Duke3d. It's who I am, I don't want to change, but they strive to take it away from me.

My computer even saw air time last night falling from my 2nd story window.

That sucks, it broke my CPU fan and the front of my case. Plus my 120GB HD was ruined by crushing its power connector.

And the reason I can finish GoldenEye, is no one will fucking answer any of my damn questions on here, they just blow them off with dip-shit stuff.

Yes.. My parents get on my case about computers also, even though I spend a maximum of about four hours a day, and I do other things like skateboarding and I socialize with friends. Every once and a while they'll make extremely unfair time limits, which limits my modding work abilities.
