I was wondering if there is a possibility to allow a script command to look to see if renguard is running on a client. as in !RGCheck [nick] or [ip] and have the renguard client respond to it in the affirmative or negative. This would allow those servers still having problems with their scripting bots compatibility with renguard to make use of it still, by allowing mods to check when people are insisting they are using it. In the past this was given a flat NO as I guess it was about something with copyright of renguard or whatever. I was just asking though.

It would be nice to do a !RGC [ip] and be able to tell if that user is running RenGuard or not from IRC.

ingy..

I believe you can do !rglocate in BRenBot to find a player. Once we get our databases organized (long story), I will be adding a page to the website to allow you to search for someone on RenGuard in real time.
