I'd rather not explain it over the open internet.

But I'm afraid I don't have the models for you. And I'm not really good in making them myself.

des·pot
n.

1. A ruler with absolute power.
2. A person who wields power oppressively; a tyrant.

What did you think he was trying to spell?

They will, once Primary Season is over. Neither is the "official" candidate yet. The depressing part is there is no 3rd candidate that would be invited to a Presidential Debate.

DarkDemin, that signature is fucking hilarious. I don't think you realize how much irony is in that. People criticize Bush for abusing his power in office, such as his overuse of Executive Orders (like when ordered the records of his fathers presidency hidden, or when his transferred funds sanctioned for Afghanistan to Iraq).

I mean for gods sake, if you're going to try to make a political statement at least make sense. Like for instance you could say that Kerry is soft on issues, or point out things that you disagree with.

Yeah, I mean, c'mon, Republicans have only been the choice of the American people 18 out of the last 28 presidencies (with democrats winning 9). America may not have the best education always, but the american people aren't that stupid to vote bad presidents that many times.

Correction, Democrats have won 10 elections out of the past 28, Bush did not win either the popular vote or the electoral vote, so if you want to vote for some-one who conducted a coup against the white-house by all means do, just remember if this had happened in a less developed state U.N peace-keepers would have arrived long ago to take out Bush, which by the way was one of the things I was pointing at by calling Bush a Despot. As for American people aren't that stupid, they are, it's the same in every country, many people only pay attention at campaign time, then when the elected (or sometimes non-elected) official gets into office, the story changes.

What has Bush done that's really good for this country? The only thing he used to be running on was that he did a great job with 9/11, and now it turns out that he did a pathetic job. All Bush can really say now without lying is that he gave rich people a lot of money.
