Ok this is the story. I decided to run Adaware to get rid of a few things that might be on my computer. I deleted everything it listed after the scan. Then almost everytime I do this, a error comes up about .dll something balba. Is this .dll file just needed to run the adware that I deleted?? And also, after I did this, it wont let me uninstall any programs on my computer. it says that it cant find the uninstall file. and when I manually try to uninstall something it says i cant becuse a .dll file cant be deleted. What is the problem? I tried system restore no help there.

You could try reinstalling Windows (over your current installation). That will replace any missing files while keeping all your additional stuff.
