... Of Trey Dornieden, I came hear because this is the community that he had participated in the most outside of the Dominion Guild. I posted because his presence affected a great many people and helped to make Renegade what it became by hosting a number of servers and working with WW staff.

His nick in game was DOM_TreyD and many people will remember the domsvr name because while he was able he always had at least 4 up at any given time. a 32, two 20s and a 16 person sniping server. Not many people know that hosting these servers cost him his job with a company known as Choicepoint. I knew of Choicepoint because I work (worked) in Federal Law Enforcement and it is no small irony that one of the three counties that he serviced was the one I worked out of. The software that he helped to write enabled myself and many other Law enforcement personnel around the country to help keep the streets safer.

He also impacted the gaming community in other ways. The Dominion Guild spawned many other clans and they all had one thing in common. A great respect and admiration for this man who always had time to speak to anyone. He would give his time to anyone no matter the age and I would dare to say he affected lives in a positive manner because of his ability to listen.

I was one of the last people to speak to him the night he died. I know of at least one other that spoke to him after I did. I say this because he was complaining of chest pains and not being able to breathe well. I asked if he wanted me to call the paramedics and the reply was a long time in coming. I learned the next morning that he had passed away from a blood clot in his lungs. To this day, I feel some guilt at what I didn't do.

The Dominion Guild shut down their forums and made one topic on his passing. Over 600 people came to pay their respects to a man most knew only as a voice in TeamSpeak or as a line IRC.

You are still greatly missed by those of us who knew you best and we can only hope that you are in a much better place. I for sure that the world is a much sadder place without you.

TreyD, man will i never forget this great man.

He took little ol me, helped me out, and guided me along some of the paths i am currently on.

He was a great man, a great teacher, and a friend not to be without.

I have missed him since the day i last talked to him. I can't even delete the emails from my inbox from him, or his name from my icq. What he taught me about many things will forever stick with me, as well as his memory.

Always missing TreyD.

I knew Trey through being part of the administration at n00bstories, and consequently through IRC.

He was always online, and most definately always there to lend a helping hand regardless of what he was doing or what was going on in his life. He was also a competitant leader and didn't back down from a challenge; be it from script kiddies, or just from certain idiots being idiots. He was admirable in the way he dealt with issues online, and I can only assume, the way he did in his daily life.

I know I won't forget that.

To spark a quote from way back when: "Love Trey; Fear Trey".

A year?

God, how times does fly. It doesn't seem two weeks ago that he was in IRC, giving people advice on this, laughing at jokes, and being a damned good person.

I don't pretend that I knew him well, a year ago I only started being "in the loop" myself, so I am sure other people, especially those who were with him in Dominion Guild, remember him for better reasons and can post more thoroughly on why he truly deserves our thanks.

My thoughts go out to those he left behind, I can only think on what they are feeling.

* DaveGMM raises his glass. Love Trey; Fear Trey.

I am sorry to say that I didn't know Trey. However, the nights I have spent talking to Foenixz about him, I know that he was a great great man.

He will be missed by everyone.

Trey was a very close friend of mine. He was always there when I needed someone to talk to. I miss him terribly and will never cease to miss him. However I also remember the many good times I had playing alongside him in DOM and just generally talking about this and that. He was a great man. I will never forget him.

A whole year!!

That has gone so fast. I remember I used to scan the Dom boards quite a fair bit. Although I never knew him I knew what a great person he was. I know that he will be missed by so many people and his memory will live on with so many people here.

What more can be said.

RIP

Trey was one of the nicest people I ever met online. I never heard him say "That's a stupid question". Any time I had a question, he would answer. He enjoyed helping others. That is something very rare now-a-days.

My prayers not only go for him, but the family he left behind. I know what it's like to lose a parent when you are a child and I pray that his son will not fall in to the traps that kids from single parent families encounter.

God bless....

Reading all these comments is really making my eyes get that "near crying" feeling, its making me sad just thinking about it. I do rember playing with him a few times in my very eairliest games of reneagde. Just rember the name, nothing else, from the sounds of what you guys all think of him, i wish i could have known him.

I had known Trey for about two years when he passed away. I would talk to him each day for at least an hour. When times got rough, he was always someone I knew I could talk to. We both joined the Dominion Guild at the same time and the time I spent gaming with him was great. I am honored that I was able to play with such a great guy. He is definetely someone I will never forget.
