O.K, look at it this way: You play on multiplayer, and you sometimes see a vehicle that looks like it is teleporting, instead of moving straight.

This is not a cheat, but it happens sometimes. When it happens to you, your character can still use its weapon when you are inside vehicle and in some vehicles, it will change from thirdperson view to first person view. This also makes it look like the vehicle is lagging.

The point is: The most logical course of action is to exit the vehicle, and enter it again, so that it works normally. But, some people don't do that, and it is really annoying when you see this. So I am asking: Why some people don't exit the vehicle? Are they so stupid that they don't care about this? Does it give you any advantage?

If you don't know what the hell am I talking about then nevermind. I don't really know how to explain this.

On City Flying I was in a flame tank as a Raveshaw when that happened, some one else was driving and we got to the AGT and I was shooting at tanks as we drove by and damaging them and then when I got out I had FULL ammunition. So, yes it does give you an advantage.

I've seen this happen with engineers and medium tanks. Repairing and destroying a vehicle at the same time :sly:

The player who is glitched with the warping vehicle doesn't necessarily see anything weird himself.

I know exactly what you are talking about mate.

When that happens to me it is just really annoying and you can't see the map properley. This means that I want to get out and get back in to fix this problem.

I hate when it happens to me and therefore I always assumed that other people thought the same.

DAMN THIS REALLY takes me back... oh the memories... If there is a renegade glitch i know about it, thanks to my 56k with its lag killing abilitys, my laptop grx card with its ability to see through walls, and my unbelivilbe luck to see infintry & my previus involvment with the original +HS+ clan makes for one hell of a game XD. I would sometimes find my self trying to do this on purpose. I wonder what would happen if this happened when i had a hottie or a techo with the proxzys. Its hard to belive how time flies... Oh those were the days...
