I'm looking at the top left two. The 1.7 ghz celeron, and the AMD 1700 1.47 ghz. They both have a 30 GB harddrive, 256 mb RAM, 100 GB bandwidth, Redhat, FreeBSD, or Fedora for the OS, free setup, and $54.99 monthly fee.

I was wondering which one I should get since they're the same price, I would think they would have the same performance, but the processor speeds are different, so which one is better, or which is worse? THX in advance.

Ok, I'm looking at server matrix now. THX Ohh ya, which of their four price payments to pick from is the cheapest in the long run (a year or more) for the super celeron 1.7?

I think if all were smart enough.. you would figure out on your own that they did not "copy" SM... they are resellers of SM.. and are most likely allowed to use SM's order information..

Go ahead.. try to order one..

I'm a reseller of SM. That's not how it works. It's through your own order page. Click "get quote" and it's a 404.

That particular AMD performs way better than that particular Celeron.
